Course Description:

This is an introductory course to Mandarin Chinese language, with an integrated approach to the Chinese language and Chinese culture. While the course primarily focuses on oral communication based upon key structures and vocabularies, reading Chinese characters and writing are integral parts of the course. The course will continue to introduce key speech patterns, important characters, essential vocabulary items as well as cultural and linguistic knowledge associated with the use of the language, with which students should be able to communicate in a more extended range of contexts in everyday life situations.

Prerequisites:

MCL 4100 Chinese Language and Culture 1

Aims and Objectives:

The course is a sequential course to Chinese Language and Culture I and designed to further develop students' basic communicative competences in modern Mandarin Chinese in terms of linguistic skills and cultural awareness. The course integrates the learning of fundamental language structures and essential vocabularies with an understanding of how the Chinese language works and how it is related to the Chinese culture. It encourages students to develop their own language learning strategies so as to be able to conduct basic communication functions confidently in a more extended range of topics concerning daily life situations.

Programme Outcomes:

A3; A6 (Liberal Arts Core)

A detailed list of the programme outcomes are found in the Programme Specification.
