Course Description:

This course introduces students to the study of gender and investigates how male and female differences can be interpreted across a range of cultural variables. In addition to exploring a variety of theoretical approaches and debates related to gendered institutions (the family, work, the media) and gendered interactions (friendship, love, sex), students will also consider current issues related to the changing nature of global gender relations.

Prerequisites: None

Aims and Objectives:

- To examine the various conceptual approaches to gender;
- To develop an understanding of the different historical, social and cultural factors that have shaped gendered institutions and interactions;
- To analyse how gendered inequalities and power operate in different cultures and on a global scale;
- To develop an awareness of the connections between gender and other forms of stratification;
- To reflect on one's personal identity in relation to wider social and cultural contexts.

Programme Outcomes:

4A(i, ii, iii); 4B(i, ii, iii); 4C (i, iii); 4D(i, ii)
